E-resources for research

Databases include:

• PubMed/Medline
• Embase
• PsycINFO
• Cochrane Library
• InfoRMIT
• Web of Science
• And more…

Find all of the databases under Research tools & techniques

UQ eSpace - UQ research and thesis online repository can be found at:
http://espace.library.uq.edu.au/
Document Delivery

Document delivery allows you to request items that are not held locally. This may mean the items are not in the collection or they exist at another library branch within UQ.

To request an item follow the links from Research Support and select Request document delivery.

What can be requested:

- Journal articles from journals not held
- Journal articles from journals held in other branch libraries
- Books and book chapters from books not held at UQ

You can also suggest a purchase from the My Library service.
Referencing

Citing source material requires the correct use of referencing styles.

The UQ library has a number of guides and additional information to help you cite different types of material. The guide can be found under Research tools & techniques on the library home page.
Referencing software

Referencing software allows you to:

Collect references from a variety of sources like research databases, online journals and web sources.

To use stored references in standardised styles (Harvard, Vancouver etc.) within Word documents. This automatically creates bibliographies and in-text citations.

UQ provides free access to referencing software (EndNote, EndNote Web).

Links to downloads and further information are available under Research tools & techniques on the library home page.
EndNote

Endnote is a reference management software that is freely available via the UQ library for staff and students.

The download is available via:

https://web.library.uq.edu.au/research-tools-techniques/referencing/referencing-software/endnote

Training in EndNote is available through regular library training classes. The details are available under Library services → Training on the library home page. (There are classes on endnote for thesis writing)
Research Data Management

Research Data Management covers the planning, collecting, organising, managing, storage, security, backing up, preserving, and sharing your data.

Eduroam WiFi

What is Eduroam?

Eduroam (education roaming) is the secure, world-wide roaming access service developed for the international research and education community.

Eduroam allows students, researchers and staff from participating institutions to obtain Internet connectivity across campus and when visiting other participating institutions by simply opening their laptop.

The library is a wireless hotspot along with a number of campus buildings.

To connect your computer to Eduroam see the following guide:

https://www.its.uq.edu.au/services/wireless-network
Help Guides

How-to Guides help with using UQ library online services and systems and general research skills

Subject guides are a collection of core resources in a subject area which can help you start your research

Theses

Do you need to look at a thesis?

Tips for finding theses can be found in the library How-to guide on theses:

https://www.library.uq.edu.au/how-to-guides/theses

The guide is broken up into the sources of a thesis’s origin

• University of Queensland Theses
• Australian Theses
• International Theses (UK, USA, Canada, France, Germany)
• Other Sources
Training

Your Librarians

If you need advice on which databases to use, how to create a comprehensive search strategy or trouble-shooting with EndNote, then a one-on-one consultation with a librarian may be the best way to get help.
